a) Physical fitness

Depending on your current level of physical fitness, you may find that elements of the Mind Environment October 2020 programme are physically challenging, and so participation may carry with it risks that we cannot entirely eliminate.

Outdoor activities will rarely exceed two hours in duration, and should be manageable if you have of a reasonable level of fitness. These activities may include:

- Hiking
- Working with trees
- Repairing stone pathways
- Canyoning
- Gathering firewood

b) Mental wellbeing

Depending on the state of your emotional and mental wellbeing, you may find participating in the programme's psychological group process challenging, and so participation may carry with it risks that we cannot entirely eliminate.

We anticipate that if you have a reasonable degree of psychological stability and are not currently experiencing severe mental health problems, then participation in the group process should be manageable.

If you do experience psychological difficulties during the programme, both of the team's psychologists will be on hand to support you.

c) Village infrastructure

Bardou has simple amenities. The water supply is not mains. It is collected straight from the mountain, stored in a tank and double filtered, but is not treated. Heating is provided by open fires and wood burning stoves, and showering and toilet facilities are mostly shared. Staying in Bardou accommodation, therefore, may also pose the following risks:

- Fumes from wood burning stoves or open fires
- Unattended open fires (woodburning stoves can be safely left)
- Consuming untreated water
- Infection from shared toilet facilities, or use of earth closet toilets
- Entering into dilapidated buildings (unauthorised entry is prohibited)
- Eating home prepared food, may pose risk for those with severe allergies

Mind Environment

Where possible, we have put interventions in place, such as anti-bacterial hand gel in eating areas and toilet areas, a limited supply of bottled water for those who are concerned about drinking untreated mountain water, providing instruction on fire safety, providing a map of the village and buildings where entry is not permitted, etc.

Meals and snacks will be prepared by either the owners of the village, or a local cook, or a combination of the two, depending on the day and other practical arrangements. They will do everything possible to cater for food preferences and allergies when food is prepared, but if you have a serious food allergy, you will need to assess your own risk.

While we have done everything possible to ensure the safety of participants, in order to engage with these activities on the October programme, we ask that you undertake to:

- Act responsibly and sensibly at all times.
- Not participate if you are pregnant or under the influence of alcohol or non-prescription drugs.
- Follow any safety warnings or instructions displayed or given to you by a member of our team.
- We are not qualified to express an opinion that you are fit to safely participate. You must obtain professional or specialist advice from your doctor before participating.
- Adhere to the rules of staying in Bardou village, which will be outlined to you on your arrival.

In the absence of any negligence or other breach of statutory or regulatory duty by us, participation in the programme is entirely at your risk and we waive our liability to the maximum extent permissible at law.

We are not responsible for any theft, damage, destruction or loss of your property or belongings while attending the October programme, or at any other time in the provision of our services. You are advised to take out your own travel insurance policy to mitigate against these risks.

Please note that we reserve the right to adapt the programme from time to time due to group capabilities and inclement weather or other unforeseen circumstances. If you have any questions that we might be able to help with or you require any further information regarding the programme, please do feel free to contact: tom@tomcotton.co.uk
